

References:

1. Little, G. (2013). 'Concordance and compliance'. Improve Veterinary Practice: InFocus. [Online] CONCORDANCE AND COMPLIANCE - Veterinary Practice
2. Hall, J. (2023). 'Wound care in companion animals'. Vet Time Podcast. Soundcloud [Podcast] Jan 2023.
3. Vera, M., (2016). 'Wound bed preparation and beyond'. Wound Source. [Online] The Principles of Wound Bed Preparation and TIME
4. Baharestani M. (1999). 'The clinical relevance of debridement'. In: Baharestani M, Gottrup F, Holstein P, Vanscheidt W editor(s). The clinical relevance of debridement. Berlin: Springer-Verlag, 1-15
5. Husmark, J., Morgner, B., Susilo, Y. B., & Wiegand, C. (2022). Antimicrobial effects of bacterial binding to a dialkylcarbamoyl chloride-coated wound dressing: an in vitro study. Journal of wound care, 31\(7\), 560–570.
6. Susilo, Y. B., Mattsby-Baltzer, I., Arvidsson, A., & Husmark, J. (2022). Significant and rapid reduction of free endotoxin using a dialkylcarbamoyl chloride-coated wound dressing. Journal of wound care, 31\(6\), 502–509.
7. Chadwick, P., & Ousey, K. (2019). Bacterial-binding dressings in the management of wound healing and infection prevention: a narrative review. Journal of wound care, 28\(6\), 370–382.
8. Ronner, A. C., Curtin, J., Karami, N., & Ronner, U. (2014). Adhesion of meticillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus to DACC-coated dressings. Journal of wound care, 23\(10\), 484–488.
9. Morgner, B., Husmark, J., Arvidsson, A., & Wiegand, C. (2022). Effect of a DACC-coated dressing on keratinocytes and fibroblasts in wound healing using an in vitro scratch model. Journal of materials science. Materials in medicine, 33\(2\), 22.
10. Dowsett, Caroline & Newton, Heather. (2005). Wound bed preparation: TIME in practice. Wounds UK. 1.
11. Essity, (2014). 'Cutimed® PROTECT: the skin barrier with proven efficacy'. BSN Medical UK.